MARK YOUR CALENDAR AND START WRITING!

Are you ready to become a SAS Student Ambassador?

The SAS Student Ambassador Program is a competition designed to recognize and support student researchers who use SAS technologies to benefit their fields of study.

Selected students are named SAS Student Ambassadors and will earn the opportunity to present their research or project to a global community of SAS® users at SAS® Global Forum, which will be held April 22-25, 2012, in Orlando, Florida. SAS will pay travel expenses and registration fees for Student Ambassadors who attend and present their papers.

Start your paper now!
SAS Global Forum will issue a call for papers via e-mail this summer, and the Student Ambassador application will be available at that time. The deadline for submitting applications and all required materials – including an abstract and a working draft of the paper – will be early October.

Who is eligible to apply?
Graduate and undergraduate students from around the world are eligible to apply to this program. Recent graduates may also be eligible to apply. The submitted research project must have been conducted by a student within 12 months of the submission deadline.

Don’t miss your chance to share your research with a global audience and make some fantastic professional contacts with researchers, business leaders, SAS experts and specialists from every industry and sector!
